

A peer-reviewed publication of the Harvard T.H. Chan School of Public Health

SURGERY AND PUBLIC HEALTH SPECIAL ISSUE CALL FOR SUBMISSIONS

Surgeons are often neglected as having an ongoing presence in the care of their patients and the health of their communities.

However, surgeons have a responsibility to advocate for improving surgical care. We must confront the disparities in health and in healthcare outcomes that exist within the spectrum of surgical disease and improve surgical access and outcomes for patients from underserved and vulnerable populations.

Please submit editorial and research articles with similar themes to the following:

- How surgical subspecialties contribute to public health initiatives
- Global surgery
- Urban and/or rural surgery
- Surgical missions
- Socially responsible surgery
- Surgical access issues
- Surgical outcomes in underserved and vulnerable populations
- Surgical literacy
- Surgical inpatient and outpatient experiences

HPHR will be accepting submissions for this call until Tuesday, March 23, 2021.

Learn more and submit online at:

tinyurl.com/Submit-HPHR

Send inquiries to:

editorial@harvardpublichealthreview.org

HarvardPublicHealthReview.org